Short Description

—Based out of Copperopolis, music industry professional Richard Varrasso is bringing his vast knowledge base in the recording business to the community in an effort to build a promotional vehicle for local performing artists.

DESCRIPTION

Big 7 Records was a record company based out of Copperopolis California but operated out of Nashville owned by Dennis Sanfilippo, Dickie Franko and Richard Varrasso. There are many songs and a couple of movies floating around the catalog that are now being bought forth to one central location and the label will be revived after the loss of both partners. The new direction after the history and legacy is recast, will be on local artists and the promotion of their music and live performances around the Motherlode area.
